Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: The examiner directed Applicant to focus the claims to the language of figure 3, disclosed on the specification at page 7, line 6 - page 8, line 7. The claims in the present form are broad enough to read on all of the object synchronization systems as outlined previously. The cited figure details how a transaction manager stores the set of changes to the objects in a transaction cache during a transaction, when the transaction is committed, the persistent system computes a object change set which are translated into a database language and sent to a central database system for update the database, if the database reports no error, the object change sets are permanently committed to the in-memory object cache of the persistence system and distributed to remote persistence systems from the first persistence system. These limitations more fully explain Applicant's invention and would require the examiner to relook at all of the references previously cited. Should the examiner feel that the limitations are not enough to put the case in condition for allowance, the examiner will consult with Applicant again.
